

The final language of the Second Amendment is 'A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.' It was never meant to be interpreted as 'give every gun nut in the nation a gun.' If we have to live with it, then a person should only be allowed to have a gun following a rigorous background check and proper training. No assault rifles and no guns with large capacity clips and nobody under 21. Must have a license with no concealed carry option. My preference would be no guns at all. I know, the answers are not easy, but doing nothing results in nothing, except more killing!
